WHAT BALL STARS WILL PASS DURING THE YEAR?

[By Latest Mail]
ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Who will be next to pass away among the three real veterans of the national pastime—Bobby Wallace, Nap Lajoie or Hans Wagner? Maybe this year will mark the passing of another of these athletes, Bobby Wallace, the shortstopper for the Browns, having quit pastime regularly last season. Will it be Lajoie or Wagner who will take up the sponge in the coming campaign, or will both of them star as they have in years gone by?

Of the trio, Wallace has been in the game the longest. The ancient Scot started in 1895, and until the season of 1913 was always at his accustomed place at short, although he could play third equally as well. At short, Bobby was considered for many seasons the peer of them all in the American League.

In the 1913 campaign he slowed a lot, and was used very little by Manager George Stallard and Branch Ricker. In fact, he was not used at all when the new leader took hold, as Rivington Bland, the youngster secured from the Southern Association, was put in his place. Just the same, Wallace, after 18 years of service, could make a lot of the youngsters of the present day hustle to carry off the leading laurels.

Memory of Wallace Sticks.
But Wallace has passed. His days of starring on the ball field are over. True he will not be turned over to a minor league club for some time, but as an active participant he is through. But his memory and the great plays he made while operating between second and third, will live long in the memory of baseball followers not only in St. Louis but also in other cities around the circuit.

The youngster of the trio, figuring the length of service, is Wagner. Year in and year out it is stated that Hans is all in; that he will be unable to put up the same article of baseball he did the year before or in years gone by. But always when the final whistle blows, this same Hans Wagner is on deck staring as brightly as he ever did. From the way Wagner works, one would not imagine that he had seen 17 seasons of active service in the great and glorious pastime of baseball.

Larry Still is Youthful.
Napoleon Lajoie, the great second baseman of the Cleveland club of the American League, made his debut in 1896. Larry has been in there picking them up around the pivot station for 18 years, and last year did it just as well as he ever did. Then also he passed away almost as well as he ever did. Will the year of 1914 mark the passing of another one of baseball's most illustrious lights, as did 1913, when Bobby Wallace passed into the background, to give a younger athlete a chance to do some shining?

But just try to figure out for yourself. Where will some of the players of today be after they have been participating actively in the pastime as long as have Wallace, Lajoie and Wagner? Will Ty Cobb be the same star he is today, after 18 years of connection with the pastime? The same for Walter Johnson, Rube Marquard and several other stars of the baseball world of the present day. Wallace Was a Jumper.

Wallace has been a member of the American League since its organization back in 1902. Before he came to St. Louis, he was a member of the old Cleveland club of the National League, but jumped with a lot of other players when the A. L. was formed. Probably the chief duty Bobby will have to perform during the coming season will be to coach the younger players. He may also get into the game when one of the regulars is injured.

For years and years the prop. of the Browns tried to find a suitable athlete to take the place of Wallace, but always, after a recruit had been tried out, Wallace was on the job. Next season, though, Manager Branch Ricker thinks he has one of the coming shortstops of the pastime in Bland, and maybe Wallace's shoes will then be filled as they should be. True, Bobby is not as good as he used to be, but he put up a good game when he was called upon during the 1913 campaign.

Wagner also is aging. He was born away back in 1874, and since 1897 has been connected with the majors. That's a period of 17 years, and for that length of time Hans never has batted below the .300 mark, which is truly a great record. The shortstop for the Pirates is the only athlete who can claim such an honor.

Last year it was said that he was through. He was injured early in the season, and during the time he was incapable of participating, rumors were afloat that he was through. But Hans fooled them all. He came back, and during the campaign handled more chances per game than any other shortstop in the National League. This proved that he was not through.

close he came to not being allowed to play in the final.

At another club, in one of the important match play rounds in the sectional championship, one player was up going to the seventeenth hole. In front of the green is an old road, or path, which is sandy. There were marks of wagon wheels and horse hoof prints in the sand. The ball of the leading player rested in the sand of the road, and in playing it out he grounded his club twice in the road. One of the gallery called attention to the grounding, but the other player refused to protest the hole on the ground that the road was never played as a hazard. The halving of the hole stood and the next being halved the club grounder won by 1 up. There was no announcement on the score card that the road or path was not a hazard, and the nature of its sand, etc., manifestly put it within the meaning of a hazard. By calling the road a hazard the hole is very sporty. By not calling it a hazard the hole becomes much easier.

There is a sharp bank two or three feet high on the edge of the road toward the green, and holding the green is much simplified by the privilege of solving the club in the road. The club officials had made no announcement about the road before the tournament began, nor did they after there was some discussion of the situation just described, although some of the members of the club denied the road had been classed as not a hazard. If in the exciting final, when the decision rested with the last putt, either player had grounded his club in the road, there might have been a fine chance for an unpleasantness. Manifestly in this latter case the officials should have given a ruling on the character of the path or road in question.

In the first instance cited, there is this to be said: If the committee had ruled against the player and disqualified him for an unintentional error, it might have seemed rather severe on him, but in the end perhaps it might have done the game of golf more good, in preventing matches from being played in a happy-go-lucky manner that makes a mockery of the rules. With a concession here and a concession there by club committees, the first thing one knows the rules of golf will lose their authority.

It was the writer's duty, as referee last summer, to make a ruling on a protest. My decision was criticism on the grounds that the protest was unsupported. My answer was that I could not take the morals of the act into consideration—nothing but the rules of golf. I think it safe to assert that the man who lost the hole and the match on my decision will hereafter pay more attention to observing the rules.

WHIFFS FROM THE OLD SPORT BIKE

BY Redington.

THE best baseball news that has been heard hereabouts for many moons comes in the announcement that there will be no regular games for two whole months, and possibly longer, this spring. Funny that the lack of baseball should be the good word, but it's a fact, and the enforced rest will give the fans a keen appetite for the Oahu league series. Athletic park is to be entirely made over, and the improvements are so extensive that it will take about 10 weeks to complete them, according to estimates received by "Tommy" Treadway. Hence the shut-down.

The close of the carnival ball series early in March will be the signal to commence operations on the ball park, and when the gates are finally thrown open to the public the fans won't recognize the old lot. According to the plan, the present grandstand and bleachers will be torn down. The diamond will be shifted so that the home plate will be opposite the present Kukul street entrance, and the stands and bleachers will be built facing a little west of south. This arrangement will relieve the players of the sun trouble that now makes winter baseball a game of uncertainties, and at the same time, by the sacrifice of a little seating space, the stands can be built to protect the spectators also from the slanting rays of the late afternoon sun.

As to the diamond itself, it will have a rather short left field, which will have to be overcome by increasing the height of the fence. There will be plenty of room in right and center, however, and home runs will be much less frequent than formerly. The playing field will be built up to afford perfect drainage, and a canvas covering made for the diamond, so that a moderate rain need not mean postponement of any game.

The main entrance and ticket office will be near Kukul street, but the present entrance will be kept open for the accommodation of those coming from the street cars, a wide, covered sidewalk leading from the gate to the stands and bleachers. This, in brief, is the plan of the Athletic park management for its spring housecleaning.

The let-up in Saturday and Sunday games is the best thing that could happen to the sport locally. As long as baseball is provided, the fans will turn out, but if they are called on to witness games every week in the year, they lose interest to a certain extent, and become hypercritical. With ten blank baseball weeks Honolulu followers of the game will be keen as mustard, and the opening of the Oahu league season, at what will be practically a brand new park, will be the signal for some record attendances.

HERE'S another bit of good news. And this time for the devotees of iron and driver. At last the high cost of slicing is to be reduced.

R. C. Watson, president of the United States Golf Association, gives notification of a reduction in the price of golf balls. The revision downward went into effect January 1 and the announcement of the president of the U. S. G. A. reads as follows:

"I have the pleasure to announce a bit of news to the golfing world that I am sure will be more than welcome. The officers of the United States Golf Association have been in communication for some time past with a sporting goods house regarding the high price of golf balls.

"This concern announced officially to the president of the United States Golf Association that after Jan. 1, 1914, the price of all golf balls manufactured by them that have been retailing at $3.50 per dozen will be reduced to $2.50 per dozen, and that two specified kinds of balls will be retailed at $1 per dozen. Professionals who have at the present time a stock of golf balls will receive a 'discount' from the manufacturer enabling them to sell the balls at a fair profit at the reduced rates."

The Chicago White Sox will come to the Pacific coast about the middle of February and will be seen in a number of practice teams with the coast ball players.

PALAMA DEFEATS DEPT. HOSPITAL AT BASKETBALL

One of the hardest basketball games ever played on the Palama Settlement gymnasium floor resulted Monday night in the defeat of the Port Shafter department hospital by the Palama Settlement Young Men's Club in their three-out-of-five series with the Department Hospital. The scores for the three games were: 30-24, 28-24 and for Monday night, 26-21. This is the third straight victory for the Palama Settlement Young Men's Club in their three-out-of-five series with the Department Hospital. The scores for the three games were: 30-24, 28-24 and for Monday night, 26-21. This is the third straight victory for the Palama Settlement Young Men's Club in their three-out-of-five series with the Department Hospital.

These games should have served to whip the Department Hospital men into fine shape for their coming contests with the Port Shafter team, and the Palama Settlement Young Men's Club in their three-out-of-five series with the Department Hospital. The scores for the three games were: 30-24, 28-24 and for Monday night, 26-21. This is the third straight victory for the Palama Settlement Young Men's Club in their three-out-of-five series with the Department Hospital.

Next Monday the Palama Settlement men hark back to indoor ball in order to clean up an uncompleted series with the Beretania Settlement Young Men's Club. The score in games stands now 1-1, and Monday's game will decide whether the laurels shall rest at Palama or with the Beretania boys.

It is not Palama Settlement's crack aggregation of all players that the Beretania boys will meet, but a so-called second team. It is a second team in the respect that the Palama boys have agreed to put in a substitute battery instead of the terrific combination of Arthur Parker and Chetito Moriama—a combination which has not been beaten for four years. This agreement between the teams has had the effect of evening up the competition, and makes the series very much more interesting for both clubs. Both teams are practicing hard and an exciting game is looked for next Monday.

TENTATIVE TENNIS DATES ANNOUNCED

The tentative tennis program for next month, when William Johnson and Ella Potrell arrive from Manila, has been arranged by A. L. Castle. Johnson just won the championship of the Orient, with Potrell as runner up, and both should be in good form after a few days of practice.

The players will arrive here on February 7, and will go out to Schofield Barracks to play doubles against Lieutenant Robertson and William Eklund of Ewa, on Sunday, the 8th.

On the 10th there will be exhibition singles at Honolulu, Johnson playing against Castle, and Potrell going against A. J. Lowrey. Johnson will try conclusions with his traveling mate on February 13, and on the 14th Johnson and Potrell will play a doubles match against R. A. Cooke and W. P. Roth.

YACHTING WILL BE FEATURED AT S. F.

[By Latest Mail]
SAN FRANCISCO.—J. R. Hanly, special yachting commissioner for the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, has left for New Orleans, Cuba and New York. From New York Mr. Hanly will journey along the Atlantic Coast visiting all yachting and shipping people with a view to studying the most approved types of boats to be entered in the 1915 yacht races. These races will be held in San Francisco bay in April. The principal events will be held with the 12 meter boats, for which a cup has been offered by President Wilson.

Sir Thomas Lipton is now building a boat to compete in the races. The 12 meter boats which have become so popular in the East and Europe average 33 feet, 4 inches on the water line and 60 feet over all. It is expected that representatives of the royal families of Europe will send their 12 meter boats to participate in the contest.

WORLD BARREL-ROLLERS ON WAY TO NEW YORK

NEW YORK.—Cheered by several hundred, Zanagari Eathillio and Zianillo Eugene, two men who are rolling a barrel around the world, today left for San Francisco. The globe trotters left Venice June 20, 1909. Since then they have rolled their iron-bound barrel throughout Europe. They arrived in New York a week ago. It will take them, they say, four years to complete the trip.

Why Not Soccer For Fair Athletes of The Islands?

The feminist movement has reached another field of endeavor in the East—that of soccer football. Two teams composed of members of the fair sex recently played an exhibition game in New York before a large crowd, and so well did the players boot the leather that the winning team at once challenged an eleven of the opposite sex.

Why not soccer for the athletic young women of Honolulu? Girls who can play tennis and basketball as energetically as do some of the local exponents, should be able to play soccer, and play the game well. It would be a novelty and a big hit, at any rate.

NEW DEFINITION OF TENNIS AMATEUR IS MADE BY COMMITTEE

[By Latest Mail]
NEW YORK.—A new definition of the lawn tennis amateur was formulated January 12 by the amateur rules committee of the National Lawn Tennis Association, and will be offered for adoption at the annual meeting of the national body here on February 6. It provides that a player may receive money to cover his necessary expenses only "when officially selected to represent his association or club in a world's championship, or in a national, sectional or state championship held under the auspices of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association."

The new rule is understood to conform sufficiently with the rule of the International Federation of Europe, so as to cause no friction as to Davis cup matches of the future. The only opposition to it is expected from invitation and hotel promoted tournaments which, if the rule is favorably acted on, will have to depend on local players.

The proposed rule follows: "An amateur lawn tennis player is one who has not accepted money or traveling or living expenses for playing the game in a tournament, match or competition, but a player may accept hospitality at a private house and when officially selected to represent an association or club in a world's championship or in a national, sectional or state championship held under the auspices of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, or in a representative team competition, a player may receive from such association or club his necessary traveling and reasonable living expenses. The interpretation of this rule shall not prevent a player from taking advantage of any reasonable special living or transportation rates which are properly announced and are open to all players entering a tournament."

WALTER JOHNSON TURNS DOWN BIG OFFER FROM FED.

[By Latest Mail]
CHICAGO.—Walter Johnson, the famous Washington pitcher, has refused an offer of a salary of $30,000, made him by Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago Federal league team. Tinker announced today, Johnson said he "was sorry, but had already signed with Washington and would not jump his contract."

A similar offer was made Joe Wood, the Boston American pitcher, but he also declined because he had already signed with his team, "King" Cole, who gained fame as a member of the Cubs' pitching staff in 1910, and who was drafted by the New York Americans from Columbus last fall, was signed today by Manager Tinker.

The Chicago Federal league ball park will have a seating capacity of 20,000 and will be larger than the average park in the major leagues, according to plans announced today.

Architects presented plans, which call for a single deck grandstand with a seating capacity of 13,000, of which 3000 will be box seats. Pavilions at either end of the main stand will give an additional capacity of about 4000 and with the bleacher space available, it is believed more than 20,000 can be seated. The new ball park will be ready for the opening of the 1914 season league officials said.

Raid on Majors Now On.

The long-promised raid of the major leagues for baseball talent has begun in earnest by Federal league interests, according to Joe Tinker, who has left on a trip which, he says, will take him to the homes of many players who have won fame in the National and American leagues. Otto Knabe of the Baltimore club and Morehead Brown of the St. Louis club will soon start on a similar pilgrimage, Tinker said.

Tinker refused to name any of the players he intended to visit and to say where his first stop would be.

Tinker left a few hours after the return here of President Murphy of the Chicago Nationals. Murphy has been in Cincinnati at the national commission meeting. The Cub president asserted he learned there that Tinker's disregard of rules governing drinking was one of the reasons why he was released by the Cincinnati club.

"Last season was my most successful in baseball, and if I thought my success was due to drinking I would spend more time at the bar," was Tinker's reply. "I led the league shortstops in hitting. I was not such a hard drinker that the Brooklyn club hesitated to pay $25,000 for my services without consulting me. Mr. Murphy himself had a conversation with me after the Brooklyn negotiations had started and violation of the national agreement. He said he had paid $10,000 for the services of Roger Bresnahan and hinted that he thought highly of my ability to play ball."

GOLF GOSSIP

Strict adherence to the rules is probably more important in golf than in any other game played today. Carelessness in this regard has spoiled many a good player, for the reason that if he is in the habit of slighting the minor prohibitions, and then comes up against an opponent who insists on the strict letter of the law—and every real golfer should do this—the moral effect of forfeiting a hole will have an extremely bad effect on his game.

Below is given a valuable little sermon on rule observance. It appeared in the December number of the Golf magazine, and is worthy of the attention of those who are not fortunate enough to see that excellent publication frequently.

Not till one has visited many tournaments does he become acquainted with the delicacy of some of the positions in which officials are placed. Two recent happenings illustrate this. At a big tournament in the match before the semi-final a player unintentionally violated a rule that did not affect the play of the hole at all. His opponent won the hole, so that the error did not affect the match. But the rules for match play say that in such a case both competitors should be disqualified. The chief member of the tournament committee, well known for his strict adherence to the rules, when a hypothetical case covering the error was placed before him just before the final started, the day after the breach of the rule, at once said: "I'd disqualify them both."

Then he was told that the disqualification might wreck the tournament, that the final couldn't be played, and the large gallery that had come out would be disappointed. A new light broke in upon him. Finally, after much cogitation, he decided that since no statement of the violation of the rule had been made the day before and that as a semi-final had intervened, it would seem like stirring up trouble to rule the player out so the violator of the rule won the cup, and to this day is probably unaware how

STANFORD HAS NEW TRACK COACH NOW: 'DAD' MOULTON OUT

[By Latest Mail]
STANFORD UNIVERSITY.—Erroll P. Campbell, captain of the Stanford varsity track team last season, has been named as the official coach of the cardinal track squad for the coming season. He will fill the place left vacant by the retirement of "Dad" Moulton, the veteran trainer, who leaves the campus after a 12 years' service. Campbell will serve as coach without pay. With Captain Paul McKee, he will have complete charge of the track team. Campbell is an all-around athlete. Last summer he competed in the national championships at Los Angeles, and made an excellent showing in the all-round events. He transferred to Stanford from the University of Nevada, where he participated in track athletics and also played Rugby. In the summer of 1911 Campbell was a member of the Olympic Club team which competed at the Eastern championships.

Campbell has a record of 10 seconds flat and an even 22 seconds for the 100 and 200 yard dashes. Last spring he took points in both of these events at the intercollegiate meet with California. The year previous he won his cardinal athlete can be counted upon in the relay, and makes a creditable varsity letter in the quarter mile. The showing in the shot-put.
